A Message from President Wayne M. Burton

Dear Friends of North Shore Community College:

I am very pleased to present the 2010 President’s Report and to share with you the accomplishments of the past year. As we advanced the College’s strategic goals and embarked on new ventures, we set new benchmarks for success.

The President’s Report is organized to showcase NSCC’s strategic plan, Leadership and Learning in a New Economy, and the significant progress the College community has made in implementing its goals. I hope you will share my pride in our many achievements and commit to engaging with us on the substantive work ahead.

Thanks to Governor Deval Patrick and Senator Fred Berry, among others, NSCC broke ground last year on a new $32 million, 58,700-square-foot three-story “green” Health Professions & Student Services Building at its Danvers Campus. The new building will mean a boon to the economy of our region in several ways. NSCC will be able to train many more students of all ages for recession-proof jobs in health and science fields.

At the same time, it will provide space for the “green industry” NSCC programs now housed at Essex Agricultural and Technical High School such as Veterinary Technology, Horticulture, Food Science and Safety and Environmental Technology. It will additionally create regional jobs for construction supply workers and environmental technology companies, focusing on solar energy, geothermal heating, daylighting and natural ventilation construction components.

We are equally excited about preparing for a self-study of our Lynn campus. We anticipate that this will result in a new building on our current campus footprint to meet the soaring demand in our urban center, as well as renovations and “greening” improvements at our existing Lynn location.
Following a comprehensive evaluation, we were extremely pleased to learn this spring that NSCC is continued in accreditation by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges’ Commission on Institutions of Higher Education.

President Barack Obama has made education a top priority — thanks to his efforts and support, NSCC and community colleges nationwide will be in the forefront of providing the country with affordable basic college education and training, while opening doors to the best four-year colleges and universities.

We end the year by thanking the faculty, staff and students who inspire us, the business and community partners who work with us, and the friends who sustain us with their gifts of time and talent. You understand the real opportunities that celebrate who we are — a tradition of academic excellence, a deep and passionate commitment to student success, and the promise of service to individuals, families and the communities we share.

Wayne M. Burton, Ed.D.
Randy Price Headlines NSCC Forum on Tolerance

Channel 5 News anchor Randy Price, America’s first openly gay newscaster and a respected member of the Boston news scene for decades, was the keynote speaker at North Shore Community College’s 23rd Forum on Tolerance. Price shared his story of coming up through the news ranks as a gay man, wary of making his life choice public. He encouraged all gay, lesbian, bisexual and transsexuals in the audience to embrace who they are and live life their own way. Noting that he has always been proud of who he is and stressing the importance of being open with his sexuality, Price said, “I always insisted that they put that (I was gay) in my profile,” said Price. “There are a lot of people out there who need an example, who need to know who you are and what you do for their own confidence.”

NSCC has hosted its Forum on Tolerance for the better part of two decades, tackling hot-button social issues from the Darfur and Armenian genocides to race relations and disease awareness. Forums pose an educational challenge to community members to learn more about one another and to better understand each other through programming intended to broaden one’s world view. The forums seek to bring about empathy and understanding toward other people, and to make a difference in the College and in the community-at-large.

Women’s Voices: Past, Present and Future

In celebration of Women’s History Month in March, five of NSCC’s women leaders led a lively panel discussion revealing their secrets for success in previously male-dominated roles. They shared the challenges they faced, what issues still surprise them and what advice they have for women and men today. Speakers were, back row, L–R: Donna Richemond, Vice President of Student Enrollment Services and Martha Brine, Dean of Retention and Student Success. Front row, L–R: Maureen O’Neill, Dean of Liberal Studies, Ellen O’Donnell, Dean of Human Services and Gloria Lopez, Assistant Dean of Special Programs.

NSCC Veteran Student Numbers Surging

NSCC’s student veteran’s population is burgeoning due to veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan, and the recent passage of the Post-9/11 GI Bill. The College has approximately 375 U.S. veterans and their family members enrolled, a significant increase from the spring 2010 semester. The College’s commitment to serving veterans and their families was advanced this year by the receipt of $400,000 in federal funding for veterans education and training programs, and its designation as a “Military Friendly School.”

The funding will create the Veteran and Family Bridge Program to bridge challenges that veterans, active duty personnel and their families face when veterans leave active duty and pursue higher education, career development and job placement. NSCC will partner with the North Shore Workforce Investment Board (WIB) and Salem State College to create a seamless linkage between obtaining an associate to bachelor’s degree or workforce training and placement.

Also through the funding, the College will create a Veterans Service Specialist position to coordinate the services provided to veterans, active duty personnel and their family members.

NSCC DESIGNATED “MILITARY-FRIENDLY SCHOOL”

NSCC’s “Military Friendly School” designation, by the national organization, G.I. Jobs, puts it among the top 15 percent of colleges, universities and trade schools which are doing the most to embrace America’s veterans as students. The Military-Friendly Schools list has been called the gold standard in letting veterans know which schools will offer them the greatest opportunity, flexibility and overall experience.

Ray Parker, an academic counselor who has worked with most of the College’s veteran students, notes, “We take a very holistic approach to serving veterans. We look at all the resources that are available to themselves and their families and work with them to devise a course of action that best meets their needs. This designation is good for the College and our veterans, but it is good for the overall student body as the College community is enhanced by the leadership, discipline and dedication shown by our veterans.”

For more than a decade, NSCC’s Student Life and Diversity Council have sponsored an annual Multicultural Fair, open to the public, that celebrates the rich diversity and cultural backgrounds of NSCC students, faculty and staff. Multicultural Fair participants, often garbed in native dress, offer samplings of native food, music, dance and crafts. Fairgoers also learn about the culture and history of the various countries represented.

NSCC student and Air Force reservist Eulises Tirado is currently enrolled in NSCC’s Health Sciences program and plans to become a military flight nurse officer. His long-term goal is to obtain a master’s degree in nursing and become a nurse practitioner specializing in cardiology.

NSCC campuses provide an environment where each person and every group fits, feels accepted, has value, and contributes.
Project GRAD Creates Pathways to Medical Careers

Project GRAD (Get Ready to Achieve Degrees/Certificates) is new at North Shore Community College this year thanks to a $500,000 United States Department of Education grant through the Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education (FIPSE). The program will help underskilled adults find pathways to education and training for promising careers in medical assisting or medical office support—fields that have available, good paying jobs, and growing demand for workers.

NSCC was the only community college in Massachusetts to receive the prestigious grant, which was awarded to only 29 community colleges in the country. The three-year grant award, in the category of “Innovative Strategies in Community Colleges for Working Adults and Displaced Workers”, builds on current NSCC projects and partnerships.

The project will help underskilled adult students see the connections between a college education and their career goals, and will offer professional support in conjunction with developmental work in communications, math and reading, as well as hybrid (partially online) developmental courses contextualized to different disciplines, and specialized advising by Achievement Coaches.

Kelly Sullivan, J.D., directs the program. “A lot of the people coming into the program are unemployed or underemployed and seeking an opportunity to retrain. Our students are very diverse in terms of race, gender and range in age from 18-58.”

NSCC—New England Economics Championship Team

Like Father, Like Son

In 1985, the year Jon Shutt graduated from NSCC’s Engineering Science program, students couldn’t search the Web for information, no one had a cell phone, email was unheard of and the only Tweeting was done by birds.

Fast forward to 2010. Jon’s son, Benjamin, following in his father’s footsteps, is about to start his first semester in NSCC’s Engineering Science program. Despite enormous advances in technology, Jon says, “The technologies we now have are just tools that engineers use. Engineering success is still the result of clear, logical thinking.”

Jon credits NSCC with his success. “I started at Michigan State University and was completely lost. I did poorly. I moved to Massachusetts and applied at NSCC since it was all I could afford. I soon discovered a completely different atmosphere. With the personal attention I received I soon had my feet on the ground and began to thrive. The class size, access to faculty, campus, etc. all gave me a new sense of accountability and potential for achievement.”

Benjamin is among 11 local graduating high school seniors, all entering NSCC this fall, that were welcomed into NSCC's Presidential Scholars program. Benjamin, whose interest in engineering was kindled in the third grade when he received the book, The Way Things Work, says, “What I like about engineering is that there are so many different options available... it always seemed to be an interesting field...[and] has given my father good career opportunities.”
NSCC Faculty Honored for Their Contributions

Each year North Shore Community College selects two full-time NSCC faculty members and one MCCC professional staff member to receive the NISOD Excellence Award, which recognizes teaching excellence and excellence in supporting student success.

The recipients were honored to be recognized and shared a bit about what motivates them. Kathy said, “It may sound a bit cliché, but my excitement and motivation for teaching comes directly from my students. Witnessing those “ah-ha” moments, watching as students make connections from theory to practice, and instilling a zest for lifelong learning are what keep me coming back for more!”

Jim noted, “I have long felt the goal of education should be to build the desire and ability to embrace life-long learning. A successful education should allow people to continuously exercise their curiosity about all the things that surround us and the plethora of ideas that attack our brain.”

Ruth said, “I begin semesters with keen awareness of an enormous responsibility, but privileged with the amazing opportunity to have a positive impact on both students and the clients they will serve as occupational therapy practitioners. Semesters end with pride and accomplishment as students and teacher together demonstrate personal and professional growth.”

Federal TRIO Funding Will Serve First Generation, Disabled and Low-Income Students

The College’s commitment to serving low-income, first generation, and/or disabled college students on its Lynn and Danvers campuses was strengthened significantly by its receipt of a five-year U.S. Department of Education TRIO/Student Support Services Grant.

NSCC will receive $493,000 annually to address the needs of non-traditional college students who frequently are under-prepared to choose an academic program, access financial aid, or define long term career and professional goals.

NSCC’s TRIO program serves 350 students a year and is one of the longest-standing in the country, having been in operation over 30 years. TRIO students have access to professional staff who work with them to help them focus on achieving educational and career goals. Program benefits and services include: a supportive team environment; academic advising and personal support; free individual tutoring; career planning; college transfer assistance; financial aid information and scholarship search assistance; study skills seminars; cultural activities and community service opportunities.

The project also includes critical services in the areas of financial aid counseling and economic literacy to ensure that the majority of participants who come from disadvantaged or non-traditional college backgrounds are made familiar with financial terminology, and managing money and resources so they can continue their education and enjoy stable and satisfying adult lives.

This year’s program will include a Leadership Training, Service, and Engagement component, which will capitalize on the inherent motivation and dedication to success of the TRIO students enrolled in the project.

We sincerely believe that the College’s greatest contribution is the success and achievement of our students. Our dedicated and talented faculty are committed to helping every student reach his or her goals and dreams.

— President Wayne M. Burton

Early Ed and Out-of-School Providers to Benefit from Grant

Developing early education and child care providers in northeastern Massachusetts is the goal of North Shore Community College’s designation as leader of the Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care’s (EEC) Region Three Professional Development Partnership.

The EEC’s FY2011 Educator and Provider Support grant – $711,000 a year for three years – creates a regional approach to planning for and addressing the professional development and education needs of the early childhood workforce.

The regional partnership includes: Middlesex and Northern Essex Community Colleges, Merrimack College, Salem State University, Lowell Public Schools, Greater Lawrence Community Action Council, MassAEYC, Child Care Circuit, Compass for Kids, the Institute for Education & Professional Development, Massachusetts Afterschool Partnership, Build the Out-of-School Time Network, and Community Teamwork. The partnership will collaborate with the Northeast Regional Readiness Center at Salem State University.

The work of the partnership will enable those employed in the early childhood and out-of-school time sector to plan and follow a wide range of professional development opportunities through a career pathways approach. The spectrum of available learning will include opportunities to attain credentials, certificates, and planned learning activities that demonstrate core competencies, as well as the attainment of associate, bachelor’s and master’s degrees in early childhood education.

Professor Mary M. Malone instructs her occupational therapy assistant students how to measure joint range of motion.
NSCC Policy Work Improves North Shore Economy

The College continues its diverse work to improve the North Shore economy and advance workforce development issues. Positive outcomes of these initiatives include the passage of the Governor’s jobs bill which: provides employer tax credits to create new jobs; eases small business healthcare and unemployment insurance costs; and creates a new organization dedicated to providing businesses with the financial capital and resources they need to grow. Examples include:

NORTHEAST REGIONAL ECONOMIC SUMMIT MARCH 2010 — Under the leadership of the Patrick/Murray administration, this collaborative, regional forum was held to promote long term economic recovery and job growth throughout the region. NSCC, Salem State University, and Middlesex Community College were joined by over 150 members of the business community to focus on pursuing collaborative efforts that could develop new and creative ways to recover the economy.

PUBLIC HEARING ON HEALTH CARE PROVIDER AND PAYER COSTS AND COST TRENDS — To address rising health care costs, President Burton was asked to moderate this hearing where employer experiences with health care cost growth and potential short-term and long-term solutions were discussed.

GOVERNOR PATRICK’S SMALL BUSINESS ROUNDTABLE — President Burton, in his role as chair of the North Shore Chamber of Commerce from 2008–2009, was asked to serve on this initiative of Governor Patrick’s.

NORTH SHORE ALLIANCE FOR COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT — President Burton is a co-founder and staunch advocate of this regional group, which was created to address and advance North Shore economic issues.

Partnerships and collaborations will be critical to NSCC’s success.

NSCC student volunteers journeyed to New Orleans during Winter break for the 5th annual post-Hurricane Katrina Labor of Love Service Trip. Students, along with faculty and staff volunteers, assisted three families who did not have the needed resources to get closer to being back in their homes.
NSCC Receives National Recognition for Community Service

For the fourth consecutive year, the Corporation for National and Community Service has honored North Shore Community College with a place on the President’s Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll for exemplary service efforts and service to America’s communities.

Launched in 2006, the Community Service Honor Roll is the highest federal recognition a school can achieve for its commitment to service-learning and civic engagement. Honorees for the award were chosen based on scope and innovation of service projects, percentage of student participation in service activities, incentives for service, and the extent to which the school offers academic service-learning courses.

Notable achievements that contributed to NSCC’s award include development of:

- a marketing plan for Building Bridges Through Music, a multi-cultural community organization working with at-risk youth;
- a cardiac disease prevention program for adults and children in a local emergency shelter and soup kitchen;
- a food canning and preservation workshop for youth volunteers participating in the Food Project, a sustainable agriculture organization;
- a fourth faculty and student trip to New Orleans to help relief organizations renovate homes devastated by Hurricane Katrina.

NSCC Hosts Only Community College Public Policy Institute

To provide a vehicle whereby the College can actively engage in confronting and shaping the issues facing the communities it serves, the North Shore Community College Public Policy Institute (PPI) was created five years ago. Through the PPI, the College becomes part of the fabric of the region, promoting active and informed participation in civic life, and fostering community commitment to public service. The PPI expands the College’s outreach efforts and response to needs and issues through initiatives that promote community collaborations, economic development, and civic education.

Examples of civic education offered include: VOICE (Voter Outreach Initiative for Civic Engagement) workshops; basic civic training for English language learners; leadership workshops and training for prospective candidates for office and non-profit boards; advocacy opportunities including annual student visits to the Massachusetts State House Day and meetings with local legislators; financial literacy programs fostering economic understanding and success.
Climate

- NSCC embraced Governor Deval Patrick’s Executive Orders to reduce state-wide carbon emissions and establish carbon neutrality.
- NSCC President Wayne M. Burton was the 100th college president to sign the nationwide Higher Education Presidents’ Climate Commitment.
- A college-wide Climate Action Plan has been created which integrates facilities policies and procedures to achieve climate neutrality and reduction of greenhouse gases.

Capital Projects

- A new Health Professions and Student Services building will be the first zero-net-energy pilot facility in the State (estimated opening Fall 2011). The 58,000 square foot, three-story facility will not only provide on-site renewable energy (solar, geothermal, conservation), reduce carbon emissions and save energy costs, but will also be used as a teaching tool about sustainability.
- As part of the Commonwealth’s Clean Energy Investment Program, Governor Deval Patrick presented NSCC with $3.6 million to make the community college’s Danvers and Lynn campuses more energy-efficient. Funding will cover installation of solar panels on both the Frederick Berry Building and Lynn campus and new lighting and energy-management systems on the Lynn campus. Improvements at both campuses are expected to save the college and the state $400,000 annually and create 30 jobs.
- NSCC will be modernizing and renovating both its Lynn and Danvers campuses with energy improvements consistent with green principles to reduce carbon emissions. Conservation measures will include: lighting system improvements; energy management systems; new chillers and boilers; and other HVAC improvements. The College will pay back the bond funds from the energy savings. These energy improvements will provide jobs in green technologies as well as cost savings for the College with more efficiencies in the future.
It’s the College’s educational mission to teach students to ‘think green’ that’s expected to have the most long-lasting and far-reaching effects on our environment. — Richard Reney, NSCC Director of Facilities

Curriculum

To help area residents prepare for new “green” jobs and to provide knowledge on a variety of environmental topics, NSCC this fall launched a new Associate Degree in Environmental Studies. The program has two tracks, Environmental Science and Environmental Awareness. The Environmental Science track is designed for those intending transfer into an engineering and environmental science bachelor’s degree program offered at a four-year college or university, while the Environmental Awareness track is for those who want to learn about environmental topics and “green” jobs while enrolled in traditional college majors, such as History, English and Science. In addition, “green” modules have been developed across the curriculum.

NSCC’s Corporate and Community Education Division also offers a full range of short-term, non-credit programs starting throughout the year, including workforce readiness “green” courses that will prepare students for high growth positions in the “green collar” energy sector. New courses include Building Analyst and Building Envelope Professional as well as Weatherization Installer.

A “green” group cross-functional advisory team was created to work on outreach and awareness projects such as an annual sustainability fair.
Corporate Training and Professional Development
Contribute to the Region’s Vitality

Over 7,000 individuals and corporations turn to NSCC’s Institute of Corporate Training & Technology and the College’s noncredit division of Corporate & Community Education each year for professional development and customized workforce training solutions. Highlights of this year’s activity include:

NSCC Ranked Ninth in Nation for Delivering Online Courses: The division was so designated by Ed2Go, an industry leader in online learning for adults. Dean Dianne Palter Gill noted, “We are proud that so many choose to work with NSCC — we have people from all over the world taking our classes. And, we have a lot of repeat business. It feels good to know that we are successfully delivering what people need.” These six-week, 12-lesson online courses are a popular, accessible and great way for people to update skills, discover talents, or chart a career path at their own pace and convenience.

Green Energy Jobs Initiative: NSCC is one of four community colleges in Massachusetts, along with Springfield Technical, Greenfield, and Bristol Community College, that are partnering with MassGREEN Initiative to pilot a new course to prepare students for work as professional air sealing technicians and insulation installers. Energy efficiency is one of the largest and fastest growing clean energy sectors in Massachusetts, with the potential to create local jobs, reduce energy costs and reap environmental benefits.

Helping Businesses Grow Their Own Workers: Employers in need of staff can work with NSCC’s Institute of Corporate Training & Technology to meet their specific workforce needs. Currently, Twin Oaks Care and Rehabilitation Center of Danvers has partnered with NSCC to provide on-site state-approved Nursing Assistant (NA) training.

NSCC enrollment reached an all-time high this fall, topping last year’s double digit increases to enroll approximately 8,000 credit students. This is the sixth year in a row that NSCC has experienced unparalleled student growth.
NSCC Launches $2M Major Gifts Campaign

The College kicked off its Investing in a Sustainable North Shore $2 million major gifts campaign this fall to: equip the College’s new Health Professions & Student Services Building in Danvers; provide additional student scholarships; and fund College initiatives in Lynn.

EQUIPMENT FOR THE HEALTH PROFESSIONS & STUDENT SERVICES BUILDING

Gifts to the new Health Professions & Student Services Building will support equipment and technology needs related to Naming Opportunities. Naming opportunities include: Nurse Education, Practical Nursing, Physical Therapy, Occupational Therapy, Radiology, Respiratory Care, Surgical Technology, Medical Assisting, a Sim Lab suite, Animal Science facilities, and general classrooms.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Endowments for student scholarships provides direct financial assistance to NSCC students in an unrestricted or designated area of study. Current scholarships support Health Professions, Presidential Scholars, Service Learning, Liberal Studies, Engineering and Business students, and a General Scholarship Fund.

THE LYNN INITIATIVE: BELIEVE IN LYNN

The Lynn Initiative supports scholarships for Lynn youth graduating from area high schools and transitioning to NSCC, expansion of the Lynn campus, college readiness programs with Lynn schools, community programming through the Public Policy Institute, and workforce development initiatives for Lynn residents.
Work is well underway on construction of the Commonwealth’s first zero net energy building — NSCC’s $32 million, 58,700-square-foot, three story Health Professions and Student Services building.

When it opens in September 2011, the building is expected to save as much energy as it uses through geothermal heating and cooling, solar panels, and smart lighting controls. Zero net energy is a term used to describe a building that is optimally efficient, and, over the course of a year generates energy on-site, using clean renewable resources in a quantity equal to or greater than the total amount of energy consumed on-site. The building will also meet the requirements of a LEED (Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design) Gold certified building.

The building, which will also serve as a teaching tool for sustainability, has a green design that will feature LED lighting, Energy Star equipment and smart lighting and controls. The facility will utilize conservation technology and efficiency measures including photovoltaic energy production and the building will have a “green” roof covered in vegetation, “gray” water runoff recovery and solar heat.

Groundbreaking for the building was held on October 29, 2009, where President Burton noted, “Today, we break ground on more than a building,” Burton said. “We come together to witness the laying of the cornerstone of a new economic era based on the principles of sustainability and environmental stewardship.”

Today, we break ground on more than a building.
We come together to witness the laying of the cornerstone of a new economic era based on the principles of sustainability and environmental stewardship.

— President Wayne Burton
The building is being touted both for its energy efficiency and its ability to provide cutting-edge health and science education. The project will allow the College to consolidate its health programs, including those housed on the campus of Essex Agricultural and Technical High School, and complete its campus. The building will include specially designed space to train students in health programs using the latest in state-of-the-art equipment and technology. Each health discipline will have its own dedicated practice lab and teaching space and will share hands-on simulation suites and control rooms. This cutting edge equipment will enable the College to graduate prepared students ready to fill real and growing demand for allied health positions. For instance, one model teaching aspect of the new building will be a Nurse/Allied Health Education Sim Lab where students will be able to perform on a “Sim patient” to train with nursing scenario software, and video the training activities. Faculty and students can then review the results and stream “best practices” to other students/classes.

Plans also include the creation of a high tech nursing reference library, anticipated to become a resource for North Shore health professionals. The new facility will also consolidate NSCC’s Student Enrollment Services offices, which when combined, will welcome an estimated 15,000 people every year.

Once construction of the new Health Professions Building is complete, the College will renovate and reconfigure space adjacent to the Frederick E. Berry building to provide additional classrooms, conference and meeting spaces, and administrative and public safety offices.

The NSCC Foundation, Inc. was established in 1985 to build necessary endowment through private fund-raising to ensure quality and accessible education for students. The mission of the Foundation is to raise funds for technical assistance, facilities, cultural and educational programs, and to provide direct financial assistance through scholarships to academically distinguished NSCC students.

*Includes $.5.6m American Recovery & Reinvestment Act funds
Many NSCC students are first-generation college students or adults retraining for jobs in new fields. Eighty-two percent (82%) of NSCC students work and 54% of students attend school part-time, mainly due to job and family commitments. Others are new immigrants learning a new language as they adapt to a new culture. Student scholarships — made possible through the NSCC Foundation Scholarship program and its generous donors — allow students to stay on track in their programs of study and strengthen their academic skills while preparing to enter the workforce.

Types of Gifts

SCHOLARSHIP SUPPORT

By contributing to the NSCC Foundation Scholarship Program, donors guarantee that students will continue having access to high quality education. As the costs of childcare, textbooks, transportation and expenses rise, it becomes more important than ever to ensure the availability of economic support for NSCC students. NSCC Foundation scholarship awards are based on academic merit, community and college service, and demonstrated financial need according to donor designations. Scholarships may be established in a number of ways. An endowed scholarship is established with a minimum principal gift of $15,000 to be invested by the NSCC Foundation. Interest earned on the fund is then awarded as a scholarship. Other scholarships are funded on an annual basis – donors agree to contribute a specific amount each year. One-time scholarship gifts may also be made, to be distributed as awards until the fund is depleted. Scholarships can be named after an individual or corporation.

EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES

A very competitive economy demands highly skilled employees in areas ranging from technology and business to health care. Gifts for updated and high tech equipment, laboratories, and instructional facilities help maintain academic excellence and provide students with desirable and competitive job skills.

The new Health Professions & Student Services Building located on the Danvers campus offers named giving opportunities to donors in support of the building’s new, state-of-the-art equipment for healthcare education and training.

THE LYNN INITIATIVE: BELIEVE IN LYNN

The Lynn Initiative supports scholarships for Lynn youth graduating from area high schools and transitioning to NSCC, expansion of the Lynn campus, college readiness programs with Lynn schools, community programming through the Public Policy Institute, and workforce development initiatives for Lynn residents.

How to Make a Gift

CONTRIBUTIONS

Gifts may be made in cash or through pledges, in real or personal property, and in appreciated stocks and bonds. Pledges can be multiple-year commitments to be paid out on an annual or continuing basis.

PLANNED GIVING SUPPORT

Donors may elect to support NSCC through a charitable bequest which creates a living legacy to the college, while providing the donor with personal estate tax benefits. Unrestricted bequests designate an outright or specific amount or percentage of an estate for NSCC’s general use. Gifts for a specific need and residuary gifts may also be made through an individual will. Additionally, trust agreements, gifts of appreciated stock and real estate or IRA pension plans may provide financial advantages to both the donor and the college.

MEMORIAL GIFTS

Memorial gifts may be directed to NSCC by family recommendations at the time of death. Appropriate tributes may establish a scholarship, endow a faculty chair, augment the Library collection, or expand other educational programs at the college.

Save on Your Tax Payments and Help NSCC Students! How?

APPRECIATED STOCK
There is a two-fold benefit to giving the gift of stock to the North Shore Community College Foundation. First, you avoid paying capital gains taxes on the increase in value of the stock. Second, you receive a tax deduction for the full market value of the stock on the date of the gift.

BEQUESTS
Did you know that the federal estate tax can take close to half of your estate at time of death? That’s a higher rate than income tax. You can avoid this — and help a student pay for college — by remembering the North Shore Community College Foundation in your will.

Talk to your attorney or financial advisor about the advantages of these options.
